

SPRINTPRINTS

The Pearson Education New Zealand SprintPrint program was created to enable authors to publish their material in a professional form, quickly, in smaller print runs and at a lower cost to students than usual.

Printing only one year's stock means authors can update the content of their book each year, if required, to suit the changing needs of their courses and students.

To keep the retail price of the book down, the program depends on authors providing a clean, clear manuscript, following the SprintPrint Style Guide and using a standard template design supplied by Pearson Education. The final manuscript should be presented as PDF files (both electronic and hardcopy). Pearson designs the cover, title and imprint page and arranges for printing and distribution. A proofread or final check (see below) is also offered. From receipt of the final manuscript to delivery of the books takes three months.

Submitting a proposal for a SPRINTPRINT

Please provide the following information:

- 1) The course for which the book is intended.
- 2) The number of students each semester.
- 3) Whether the course is first or second semester, or both.
- 4) A title for the book, an abstract describing the contents and a detailed table of contents.
- 5) The names of the author(s) involved.
- 6) The total number of pages (excluding title page and imprint page).
- 7) The submission date of the final manuscript.
- 8) The date when the books need to be available.

How to prepare the text for a SPRINTPRINT

- The text should be written in Word, but the final version must be presented as PDF files, created with Acrobat Distiller.
- Your printout of the PDF files must be single-sided (not double-sided).
- You will be supplied with a Word template for your book as well as a Style Guide to consult in the preparation of your manuscript.

Proofreading and index

- Your publisher will decide if your manuscript will be proofread or just have a final quick page check.
 - If proofreading is required, then the manuscript can be submitted in Word and should be sent in a month earlier than the final manuscript delivery date.
 - After the check/proofread you will receive the proofread printout with the corrections or any queries marked for your attention.
- If your book is to include an index, you should compile it based on this final set of page proofs and send it to us with the final PDF files for printing.

Conditions

The minimum print run for a SprintPrint is 100 copies. You will need to be confident that your students will purchase this number over a period of a year and ensure that your university bookshop places an order with us for a minimum of 50 copies of your text before it goes to print.

You will be required to obtain copyright permission to quote, reproduce or interpret anything that is not your own work and for use of trademarked material or registered product names.

- All permissions must be finalised and copies of the letters granting permission must be sent to Pearson Education New Zealand with the completed text. The holder of copyright material might also insist that some form of specific acknowledgment appears near the copyright material.
- For figures and tables, the acknowledgment can be presented as a source line, placed beneath the figure or table.
- In the text, you may wish to include the acknowledgment in an endnote or footnote.
